The most famous pyramids are the Egyptian pyramids— huge structures built of brick or stone, some of which are among the largest man-made constructions. 138 pyramids have been discovered in Egypt, as of 2008. The Great Pyramid of Giza is the largest in Egypt and one of the largest in the world. The Ancient Egyptians capped the peaks of their pyramids with gold and covered their faces with polished white limestone, though many of the stones used for this purpose have fallen or been removed for other structures.
