

Gothenburg is the second largest city in Sweden after Stockholm and the fifth largest amongst the Nordic countries. It is the capital of Västra Götaland County (West Gothia). The city is located on the south west-coast.

Gothenburg has an oceanic climate according to Köppen climate classification. Despite its high northern latitude, temperatures are pretty mild throughout the year and much warmer than places in similar latitude, or even somewhat further south, mainly because of the Gulf Stream. During the summer, daylight lasts 17 hours, but just 7 hours in late December.

The Gothenburg coat of arms was based on the lion of the coat of arms of Sweden, symbolically holding a shield with the national emblem, the Three Crowns, to defend against its enemies.

Sean is a little nervous that Security might suspect an abandoned bear and luggage, at Gothenburg airport.
