

The Sibelius Monument was unveiled in 1967 and is dedicated to the Finnish composer Jean Sibelius (1865–1957). The monument is located at the Sibelius Park in Helsinki, the capital city of Finland. It consists of series of more than 600 hollow steel pipes welded together in a wave-like pattern. The purpose of the artist was to capture the essence of the music of Sibelius. The monument weighs 24 tons and measures 8.5 × 10.5 × 8.5 meters.

Sean with his passion for anything edible, has a keen eye on the little chocolate which has accompanied his coffee.

Sean protested against being perched on snow, whilst naked from the waist down! In the background is the Sibelius Monument.
