

Name: Jasper

child: Alex Burry Age: 7 yrs old

Where: Lanzarote, Playa Blanca

When: 18/08/09 - 01/09/09

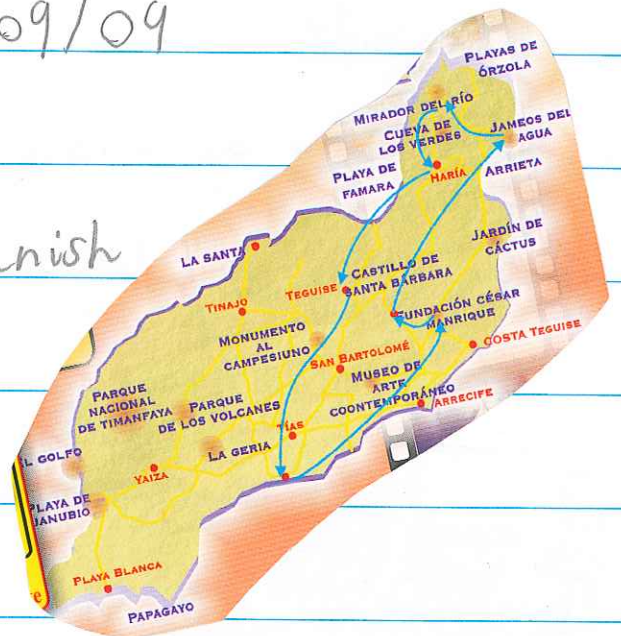

Weather: hot

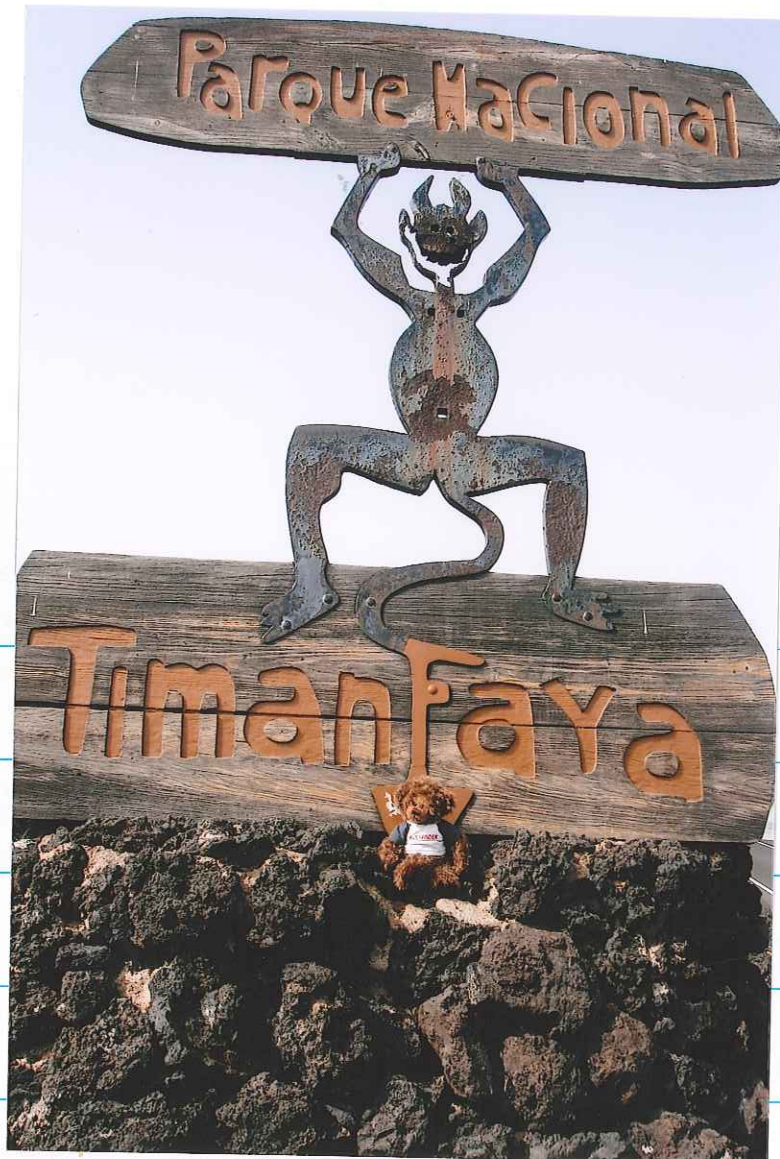

Language Spoken: Spanish

Food: paella mixta

Likes: Devils

Dislikes: Mosquitos

20/08/09

Timanfaya National park

Today Jasper went to the fire mountains.

The last eruption in Lanzarote was in 1824. We went on a bus tour, it looked like a lunar landscape. Then we went to souvenir shop and bought a volcanic rock shaped like a volcano. Then we went to the cafe to look at a tree and camel bones from a

Legend of Hilaro.

After we had visited the volcano we went on a camel ride around the mountain base. Halfway there we had a picture taken. The camels had very long legs, they were lined up in a long line. They had two seats, it was a bumpy and wobbly ride!

Today Jasper went to El Golfo. It has been in a number of films, but the real star of the show is the famous green lagoon. The colour (green) created by the formation of algae in the sea water that feeds the lagoon.

Sightseeing

Cueva de los Verdes
Admission: €8 Adults, Children €4
Parking: Free
Open: Daily 10.00-18.00
 The Cueva de los Verdes — like the Jameos del Agua — are part of a 8km long lava tube which was formed about 5000 years ago during the eruption of nearby Monte Corona.
 It forms one of the longest volcanic galleries in the world and is of great scientific interest.

In 1964 a 2km pathway was created by Jesus Soto to show off the caves to their best effect. But it is difficult to tell that there has been any human intervention at all, aside from an excellent lighting system which spotlights the cave walls.
 In centuries past Lanzaroteños hid here from frequent pirate raids. And today the Caves still house a secret which can only be uncovered by visitors.

Today Jasper went to Cueva de los verdes. It is a lava cave formed about 5000 years ago! it forms one of the longest volcanic galleries in the world! People hid here from pirates, and a secret can only be uncovered by visitors...