

Sean—Washington 2009

Sean spent much of his time in Washington on public transport....

... but finally managed to find somewhere with a nice view!

Washington has a humid subtropical climate. Blizzards affect Washington on average once every four to six years. The most violent storms are called "north easters", which typically feature high winds, heavy rains, and occasional snow. These storms often affect large sections of the U.S. East Coast.

Washington DC is the capital of the United States

